NUMB. 105.

THE South-Carolina Gazette.

Containing the freſheſt Advices Foreign and Domeſtick.

From Saturday, JANUARY 24. to Saturday, JANUARY 31. 1735-6.

By Capt. Ayres, who arrived here on Friday laſt Week in 6 Weeks from London we have the following Advices.

Hague, Nov. 23. N. S.

THERE is an itching Deſire prevailing among Noveliſts, to lay hold on all Opportunities to communicate to their Correſpondents any publick Occurrence that comes within their Knowledge. In my laſt, I ſent you the Set of Preliminary Articles, that were thought the moſt reaſonable at leaſt if not authentick, of thoſe that were handed about here: The following I have from good Hands; they are not much different from the former, but carry an Air more reſembling a Treaty drawn up by Miniſters of State, and contain Expreſſions peculiar to Negotiators, of this Kind, and are the moſt eſſential of the Negotiation.

The Subſtance of the Preliminary Articles concluded between the Emperor and the King of France, Oct. 3. N. S. 1735.

France promiſes to guaranty the Pragmatick Sanction, and not oppoſe the Diſpoſitions his Imperial Majeſty ſhall pleaſe to make concerning the Marriages of the moſt Serene Archducheſſes. She engages moreover to evacuate to the Emperor the Milaneze, and to ſecure unto him the Poſſeſſion of the Duchies of Parma and Placentia, reſerving however to the King of Sardinia the Vigevanaſco and Novareze, Provinces of the Duchy of Milan.

France will alſo reſtore all the Conqueſts ſhe made upon the Empire, and promiſes to withdraw her Troops, as well from Italy as the Empire.

The Duke of Lorrain ſhall forthwith yield to France the Duchy of Bar, to be enjoy'd by King Staniſlaus during his Life, who is to be acknowledged King of Poland by all the Powers of Europe; but is to reſign his Right to Auguſtus III. who then ſhall be acknowledged by France, King of Poland lawfully elected. The ſaid Duchy of Bar is after King Staniſlau's Death to be united to the Domains of the Crown of France, as alſo the Duchy of Lorain, after the Death of the Great Duke of Tuſcany, his Highneſs the Duke of Lorain not being obliged to ſurrender his States in Favour of France, (except the Duchy of Bar, which is to be yielded her forthwith) before he is in full Poſſeſſion of Tuſcany, which is ſtipulated for him as an Equivalent for what he yielded to France.

Imperial Garriſons are in the mean time to be put into all the Places of Tuſcany, to ſecure the future Succeſſion thereof to his Royal Highneſs.

France engages to induce Spain and Sardinia to accept this Peace, and to fulfil; in caſe of Refuſal, the Engagements preſcribed by the Guaranty with which ſhe charged herſelf.

The Infante Don Carlos ſhall be acknowledged King, and peacable Poſſeſſor, of the two Sicilies, but obliged to renounce the States of Tuſcany, Parma, and Placentia.

The Armiſtice ſhall be publiſhed within four Weeks at moſt, from the Time of the ſigning and notifying the Preliminary Articles.

A Congreſs ſhall be formed in one of the Cities of France for diſcuſſing the reſt of the Difficulties that may rekindle the War in Europe, which is to laſt ſix Months.

The Execution of what was regulated in the Preliminaries ſhall not be retarded, and the Delays that the Chicanes of a Congreſs uſually produce, ſhall have no Influence upon the good Faith with which France engages to put the Emperor, before next Spring at leaſt, into the Poſſeſſion of the States, to which the Preliminaries ſecure unto him an inconteſtable Right.

After Promiſes ſo ſtrong, and ſo ſolemn on the Part of France, the Difficulties that may be thrown in the Way by the Q---n of Sp---n are no longer feared; France is bent upon peace, and Europe may be aſſur'd of it effectually, becauſe his moſt Chriſtian Majeſty ſees the Impoſſibility of executing his Deſign to ſettle his Father-in-Law on the Throne of Poland; is he to ruin and exhauſt his Subjects, without any proſpect of ſucceeding in the Execution?

Or

Or to ſatisfy the Ambition of a Power, that aggrandizes herſelf by Force of Arms, without having any Right to the States ſhe has taken by Force; as if Italy was ſome State of America, that may fall to primo occupanti, and whoſe Sovereigns and Inhabitants are all treated alike: The Cardinal de Fleury has all the Glory of this wiſe Negociation. It only remains to put the laſt Hand to it, and regulate the reſpective Intereſts in ſuch Manner, that the Peace may be laſting, and ſalutary to Europe. But can it be cemented more ſtrongly than were thoſe of Utrecht, Baden and London of 1718 accompanied with ſworn Renunciations, and ſolemn Guarantees? Without the Firmneſs of Great Britain, without ſubtil Negotiations, and drawn out into Length, how many Years would have elapſed before what was executed ſince the Election of King Auguſtus III to the Throne of Poland? A Pretext happily found, Circumſtances unfortunately combined to hatch a Deſign, that miſcarried twice already, and was deviſed ſo many Years. In fine, the Peace is in the Hands of the King of France; it belongs to him to immortalize his Glory, to reſtore it to Europe. The Concurrence of King Staniſlaus cannot be doubted of; his Piety, Virtue and Religion will make him prefer the Means propoſed to the unneceſſary Effuſion of ſo much Blood, which could not but render a Crown odious to him, that he could not acquire but at that Price.

Venice, Nov. 12. N S. According to private Letters from Conſtantinople, Thamas Kouli Kan, General of the Perſian Troops, has made himſelf Maſter of Erivan; the Ruſſian Troops are on their March to beſiege Aſoph, and the Count de Boneval is ſo dangerouſly ill, that his Recovery is much doubted.

LONDON, Oct. 26.

On Tueſday Night laſt his Majeſty having ſupp'd in publick at his Palace at Hanover, got into his Chaiſe to proceed to Helvoetſluys, where he arriv'd on Friday, and embarking on board the Yachts, came to an Anchor at ten o'Clock on Saturday Night at Harwich; His Majeſty lay on board the Royal Caroline, and landing early this Morning, ſet out for Kenſington in his Calaſh, attended by one Nobleman: At a quarter paſt two he paſs'd by the Royal Exchange, amidſt the Acclamations of vaſt Numbers of People, whoſe Joy for his ſafe Return his Majeſty was pleas'd to receive in the moſt gracious Manner imaginable, and uncover'd himſelf almoſt the whole Way thro' the ſeveral Streets to St. James's. His Majeſty arriv'd at Kenſington about three.

The Parliament is prorogued to the 15th of January next, and then to ſit to do Buſineſs.

Nov. 11. We are aſſured, that according to the laſt Advices the Court received from the Powers engaged in the preſent War, the Congreſs will be open'd in March next at Aix la Chapelle, or at any Place his Britanick Majeſty ſhall be pleaſed to appoint.

We hear that his Imperial Majeſty has named the brave Count Konigleg, his firſt Plenipotentiary, and Count Seckendorff, and the Imperial Miniſter at the Hague, the ſecond and third Plenipotentiaries at the enſuing Congreſs of Peace.
